ENOUGH! SCOTLAND

together, we are enough! LAUNCH MAY 2019

Launched May 2019, enough

scotland is a response to our social, economic and ecological crises.

We believe that growing our economy is costing us our future. This story of growth is kind of change demands the complete reimagination of our society. We believe that not only is this possible, it is now essential. We recognise decolonisation, not only as an analysis, but as a ongoing process and practice, individually and collectively

so embedded in our ways of living that any

We don't yet fully agree on what this term means for us but it is something we are seeking to be in ongoing inquiry around 'what is it that decolonisation means for us, the work of PANDEMIC RESPONSE The need to respond sensitively to a global pandemic

lives has necessitated a shift in our work towards advocating explicitly for an economy that centres care

EMERGING CONTEXT In Feb 2021, this is how we understood the context our work is responding to. Pandemic crisis interventions mock political inaction on climate breakdown. Lockdown ennui meets marginalisation and predictable Brexit realpolitik. Hauntology meets hyperreal soft authoritarianism. One gigantic stuck container ship lays bare the perverse fragility of global and the pain and instability it has brought to people's and mutuality. We seek to challenge perceptions that degrowth is primarily about downscaling.

messages + values for our future(s). Upending conversations

#learningfromlockdown

POSTS

ROTU

curator/artist residency borne out of Enough! as a way to (re)imagine alternatives + (re)create cultural codes,

(O.)

LESS

Exploring/designing a framework for mutually afforded social protection in the face of crises and precarity. Trial pods will help shape a new arrangement for collectivising needs and offer emancipation - radical choice in the face of radical monopolies - a means to extract ourselves from

Global Degrowth Day

SMALL PROJECTS & COLLABORATIONS

 SANCTUARY - 2021

DEGROWTH IN SCOTLAND SHORT FILM Working with the Media Co-op to script and shoot a short film on degrowth in Scotland that can be shared online to promote and help contextualise Enough's work.

RURAL WIFIES SYNDICATE - HIGHLANDS

practice, including reflection, group work, ritual, movement and abstinence from the destructive season of Lent as a provocation and stimulus.

products of consumerism, using the traditional fasting

LESS ONLINE DEGROWTH COURSE We successfully ran a short online course Degrowth in Scotland - Degrowing the Economy, Regrowing Our Lives in 2020, in collaboration with the Centre for Human Ecology & two European degrowth activists. We produced a creative commons licensed course handbook. The course will run again in 2021, adding to course COURSE MATERIALS materials and specifically targeting climate activists. DEGROWTH NETWORK Enough! supports the emergence of a Degrowth Network across Scotland, connecting individuals, projects and initiatives that use anti-capitalist frames to work towards decolonisation and degrowth futures in imaginative and practical ways. COMMONING PODS capitalist modes of production and consumption.